Flame is all about igniting minds and nurturing leaders

Amrita Maru

What does one expect from a well-endowed college—a great infrastructure, great faculty, and great location? The answer lies in the founding of Flame Institute of Management Education (Flame)—a new residential college established in 2005 and located at Haldwani, off the Bareilly-Kanpur bypass, that has something more to offer.

Flame paves the way for liberal education with its four-year undergraduate programme for students who have passed 10+2. Besides full-fledged post-graduate programmes in management, flame has also undergone a significant transformation in student experience and academics.

The idea of Flame was born out of a vision shared by two friends and businessmen Prag Shah and Shahnaz Dada. The college was established to address the needs of students who were looking for a holistic education and wanted to bring in what is lacking in India.

Prag Shah

Flame is all about igniting minds and nurturing leaders. The college focuses on providing a unique and holistic education experience that goes beyond academic theory. It aims to develop well-rounded students who are prepared to face the challenges of the real world. Flame provides students with the skills, knowledge, and values needed to succeed in today's competitive environment.

Affiliation

Flame is affiliated with the University Grants Commission (UGC), ensuring high academic standards.

Fees

The college charges Rs. 14,000 annually for the undergraduate course and Rs. 16,000 annually for the post-graduate course, including lodging and boarding on campus.

Sports

The college offers a range of sports facilities, including a basketball court, swimming pool, and tennis courts, for students to pursue their interests and promote a healthy lifestyle.

Flame is designed to be a place where students can thrive and excel in their academic and personal lives. It is an environment that fosters innovation, creativity, and excellence, preparing students for success in all aspects of life.